South Bay Eighth Graders Get an Early Taste of College Life

Projects Rolling Along to Rebuild Water System, Improve Boulevard

By Rob McCarthy

Residents have been excusing the dust and noise from two public works projects that will improve the water delivery system and make travel along Hawthorne Boulevard a smoother ride. The Golden State Water Project is entering its seventh week, and the water company has alerted residents along the 3.3-mile stretch of pipeline being replaced to expect noise and traffic disruptions while crews lay new water pipes through Hawthorne and Inglewood. The price tag of the project is estimated at $4.7 million and is expected to wrap up by Dec. 1.

There will be traffic tie-ups in Hawthorne and Inglewood along the dig route for another four months, the company said. If you have specific questions or concerns, please contact the City of Hawthorne, or visit the Engineering page under Public Works Department of the City’s website (www.cityofhawthorne.com).

Fifteen South Bay Area eighth graders participated in the 5th Annual “A Day in the Life of a College Student,” July 25 and 26. The field trip consisted of a guided tour through campus, informational workshops, and an overnight stay at California State University, Dominguez Hills (CSUDH).
